

Palomar Mountain Stereographs

Peter Brueggeman

Mount Helix, 2022

Stereographs aka stereo cards are two photographic prints mounted on card stock to be viewed through a stereoscope, producing a three dimensional view. Stereographs were a popular photographic medium, reaching a peak in the years 1902-1935. Stereoscopic pictures are almost identical, taken from slightly different angles.

The first two stereographs were acquired together, and were dated 1921.

The second collection of stereographs were together and undated; the automobile dates them to the 1920s. Non-Palomar stereographs in the larger holdings by the dealer evidenced a San Diego back country driving trip(s) to Palomar Mountain, including Spring Valley, Lyons Valley, Alpine, Viejas Mountain, Ramona highway (Mussey Grade), and Mesa Grande.

“Bailey’s barn, Palomar Mt. 1921”

“Bailey’s barn, Palomar Mt. 1921”

“At Palomar Mt San Diego Calif” undated

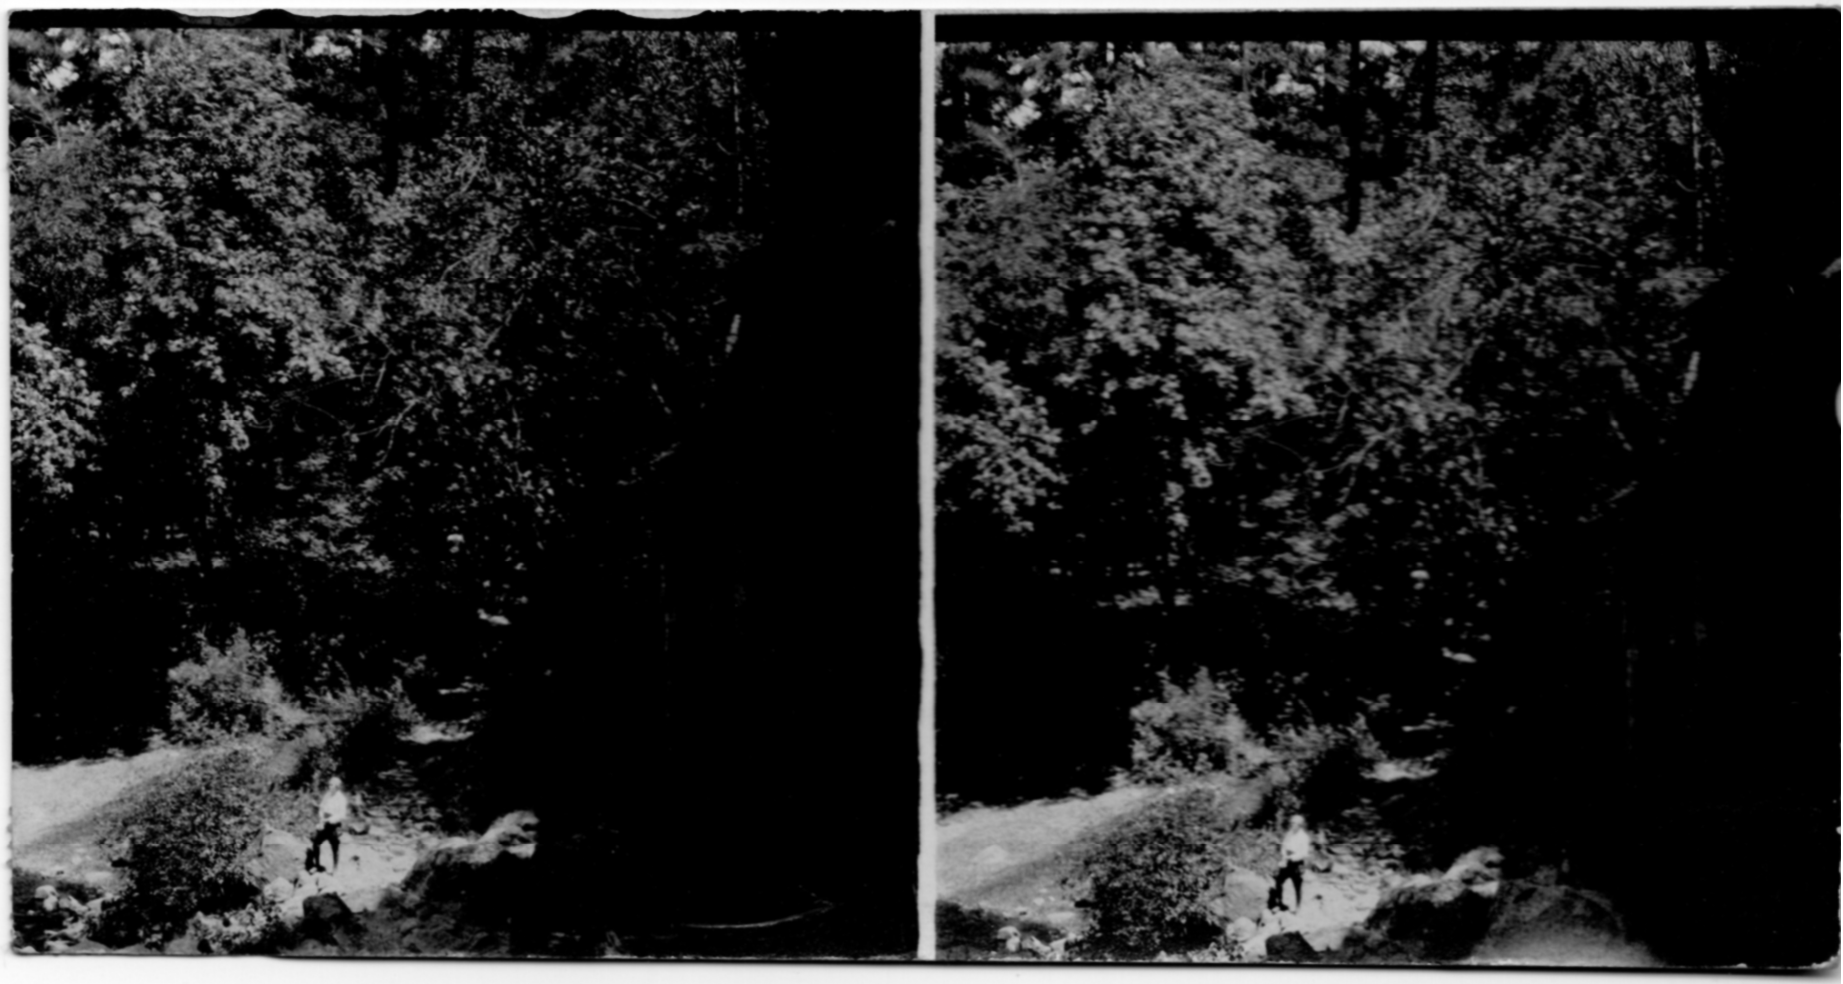

“At the Iron Spring on Palomar Mt San Diego Calif” undated

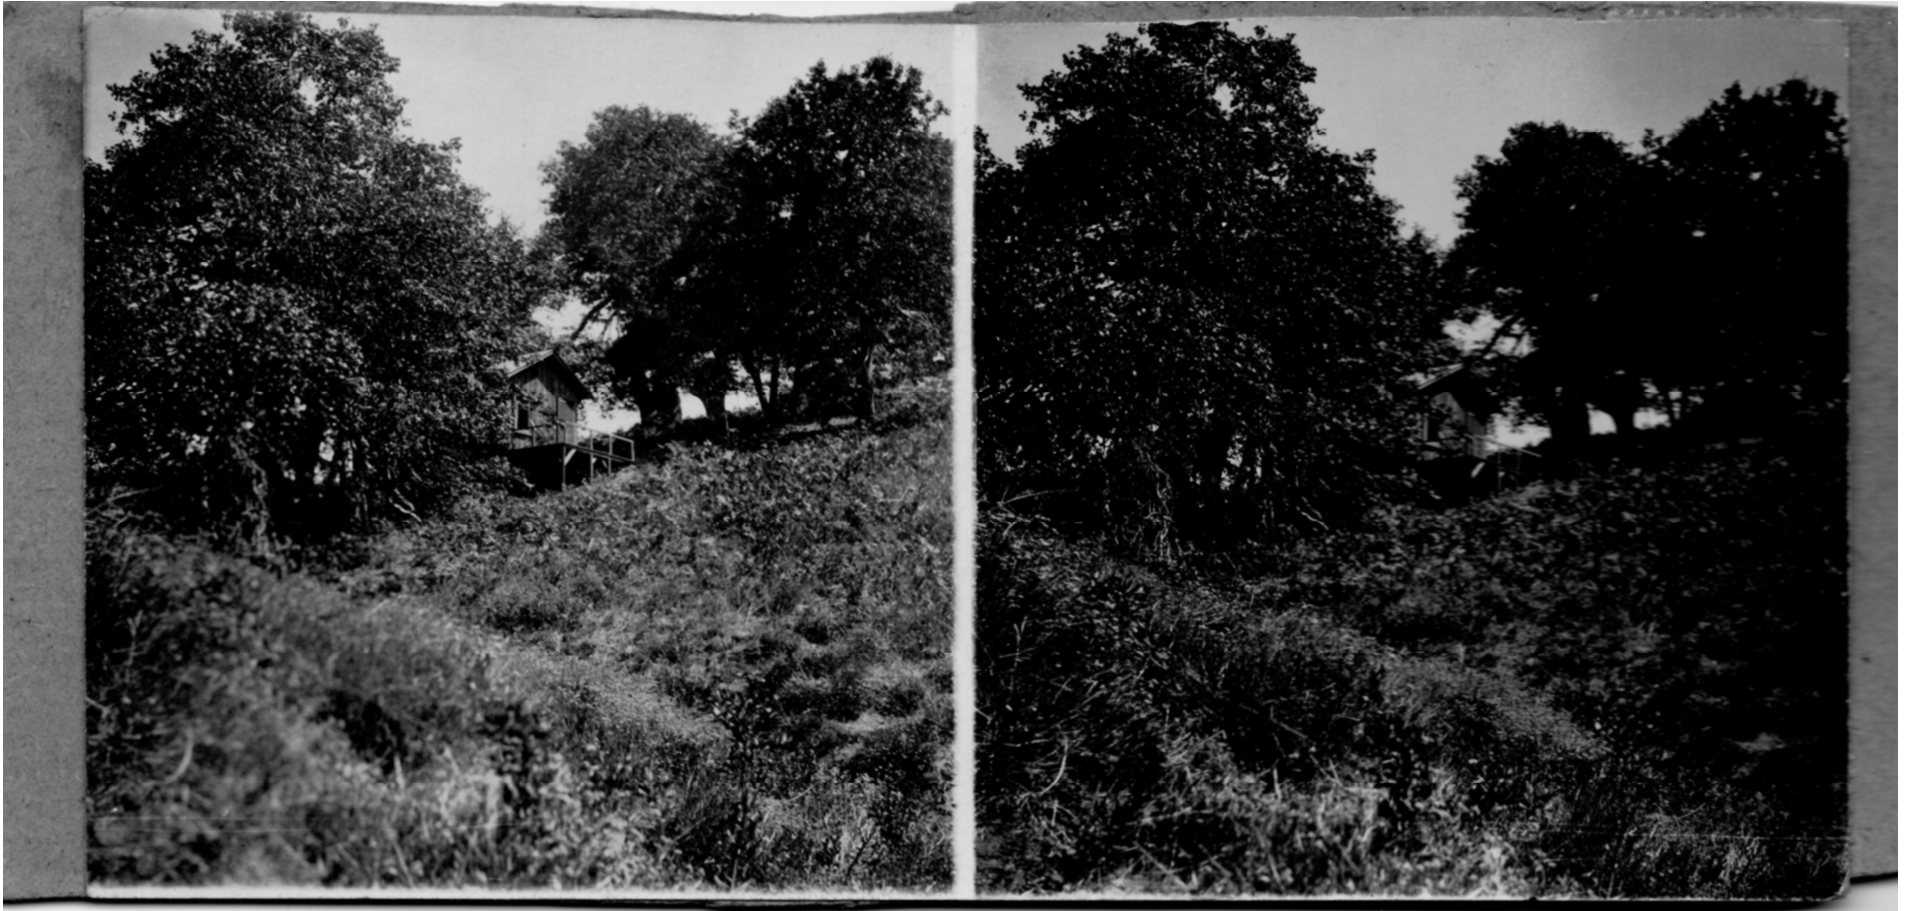

“At the Iron Spring Palomar Mt San Diego California” undated

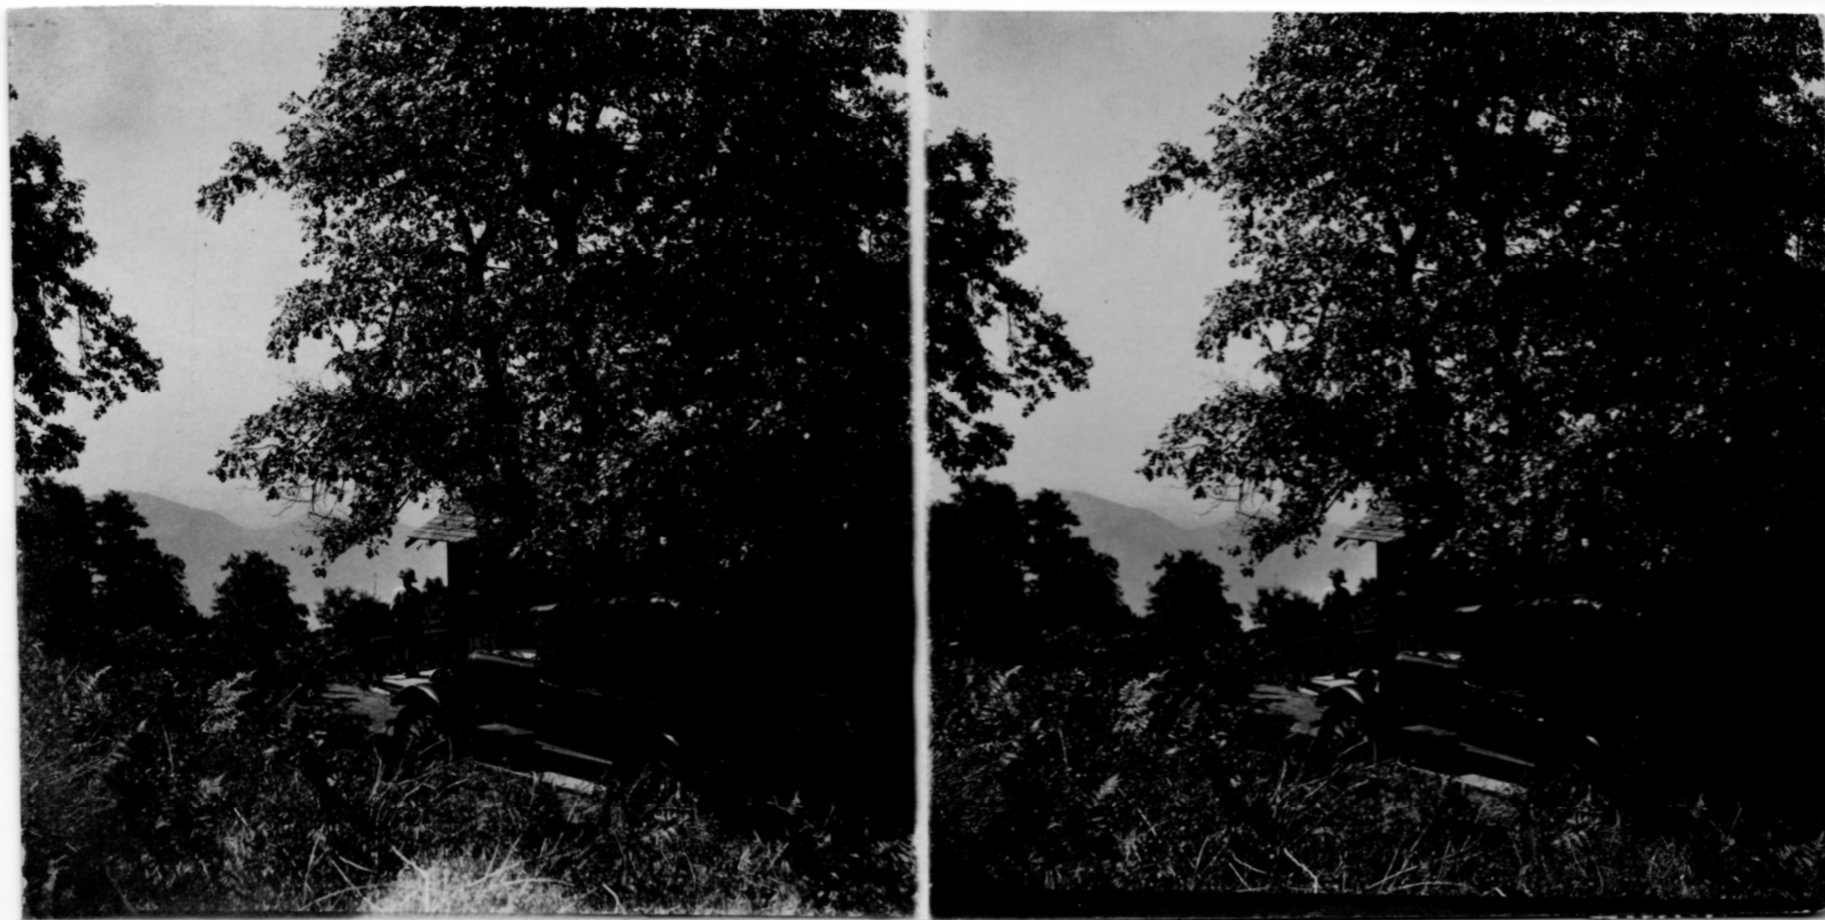

“Cabin at Palomar California” undated

“Katie at Palomar” undated

“Our Cabin on Palomar Mountain, San Diego, Calif USA” undated

“Our Cabin while at Palomar, California” undated