

Monterey

I've done quite a bit of diving in Monterey while visiting friends and family in the area. Monterey offers great diving, but not consistently so. You plan your trip to visit, take your dive gear along, and then gamble on weather and ocean conditions. My success rate has been one out of every four or five visits, so my experience has been that it isn't workable to plan diving as the primary purpose for a visit involving travel from afar plus time and money. When dive conditions are good, the Monterey area offers exceptionally great diving.

Copyright Peter Brueggeman