

Palomar Mountain residential chronology

Peter Brueggeman 2024, revision 2

This Palomar Mountain residential chronology compiles names from U.S. and California census records, San Diego County voter registers, and other sources like San Diego city/county directories. These are available via ancestry.com except where noted.

It's imprecise since people could be living on Palomar before and/or after those years. These listings can be limited to household head and/or voters, so women and children aren't always listed.

Palomar Mountain was known as Smith Mountain in earlier years. Voting and census residence names for Palomar Mountain residents vary over the years, perhaps due to registration practice, lack of established placename, and multiple residences. Palomar-specific placenames appear infrequently in earlier years. Some people were listed in off-mountain locations where they voted, went to the store or received mail perhaps, so it can be difficult to tell from census and voting records who lived on Palomar Mountain.

The boundary history for a Palomar voting precinct, when there was one, is unknown to the author, and may extend down mountain to the base. Therefore some people listed are certain to have lived below Palomar Mountain, such as Jose Trujillo.

1852 California State Census

Location is simply San Diego County in this census, so there's no way to tell who was living on Palomar Mountain. Joseph Smith is known as being resident on Palomar Mountain at some point; there may be others overlooked.

1940 Census, Escondido, Block Numbers Rural, SD No. 20, Ed No. 37-31

The census district evidently extended off Palomar Mountain including the La Jolla reservation. Therefore not everyone listed below was a resident on Palomar Mountain, so view these names in context with voter registers and other sources to determine Palomar Mountain residency. Prisoners at the County Road Camp were also listed in the census district.

1950 Census

Enumerated May 1950. Heads of households in bold. Palomar listed in Escondido township. House locations along roads are noted on the census so this list is limited to roads on top of Palomar. There are some addenda, which are difficult to interpret, so some are incorporated and some are not. As a result, the Observatory may be short on names.
